

E. James Dionne

Associate

jdionne@cooley.com

+1 202 776 2639

Washington, DC

Financial Services Regulatory Fintech

Blockchain Technology and Tokenization
Emerging Companies

James Dionne helps startups, established fintech companies, and financial institutions understand how innovative technologies interact with complex regulatory frameworks. He regularly advises clients on money transmission, lending, and privacy requirements related to the offering and operation of financial products and services.

James has worked with clients on matters related to the Truth in Lending Act, Equal Credit Opportunity Act, Electronic Fund Transfer Act, Fair Credit Reporting Act, and Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. He has also helped clients navigate government investigations and with various transactional matters.

While in law school, James was an editor of the Virginia Journal of Law and Technology, operations director for the extramural moot court team, and a member of the appellate litigation clinic.

Education

University of Virginia School of Law
JD, 2021

Harvard College
AB, 2015

Admissions & Credentials

District of Columbia