Roy represents disruptive, high-growth companies in complicated strategic matters and in critical transactions, from formation to exit. Roy also advises venture capital investors, buyers and sellers on transactions with an aggregate value in the billions of dollars. He collaborates with companies across many industries – including digital health, sports and entertainment, media, consumer products, software, AI and fintech. Drawing on his background as in-house counsel at a fantasy sports company and being a startup founder himself, Roy brings a unique perspective to his clients' legal and business needs.
