

Juan Pablo González

Associate

jgonzalez@cooley.com

Intellectual Property Litigation

+1 650 843 5095

Palo Alto

Juan Pablo González is an associate in the intellectual property litigation group. His practice spans a range of technologies, including computer software/hardware, virtual and augmented reality, medical devices and pharmaceuticals. Juan Pablo also has experience with Cooley's pro bono practice, focusing on assisting asylum applicants.

At Stanford Law School, he was an articles and member editor of the Stanford Law Review, as well as a member of the Juelsgaard Intellectual Property and Innovation Clinic. While at Stanford, Juan Pablo also pursued a Masters of Arts in Public Policy, focusing on law and economics in the intellectual property space. For his master's thesis, he conducted an economic analysis of the Biologics Price Competition and Innovation Act and its effects on pharmaceutical pricing.

Education

Stanford Law School
JD, 2020

Stanford University
MA, 2020

Yale University
BA, 2017

Admissions & Credentials

California